About Duilio ('D') Proni

Duilio ('D') Proni purchased his first Apple II in 1981 and became obsessed with learning how to program so it could “do things.” He received his B.S. in Computer Science from University of Central Florida in 1988. During this time he dabbled in writing shareware for the Apple IIGS along with commercial titles that were published by companies such as Quality Computers and Applied Engineering.

In 1990, he founded Econ Technologies, Inc. to produce internal hard drive systems and file management tools for the Apple IIGS. In the late 1990s, Econ shifted its focus to contract software development, but returned its attention to Apple in 2001 with the release of several commercial software titles for Mac OS X. Duilio continues to run Econ Technologies to this day, producing the the popular ChronoSync utility for macOS as well as InterConneX for iOS.
